

BOUGHT HIS OWN BUTTER.

The Steward of the Hastings Asylum Violates the Statute.

MORE STARTLING DISCLOSURES MADE.

Knights of Pythias Memorial Services at Ravenna—New Irrigation Project—Nebraska Weather and Crop Bulletin.

Lincoln, Neb., June 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—Yesterday State Treasurer Hill and Land Commissioner Humphrey have put in an appearance at the state house and as a consequence the board of public lands and buildings have not been able to hold a meeting to consider the Hastings asylum scandal. A telegram has been received from Captain Hill that he will be in Lincoln Monday and when he arrives a meeting of the board will be held.

Governor Thayer refuses to suspend either Test or Liveringhouse pending the investigation. A gentleman from Hastings who was in the city today and who is well acquainted with Steward Liveringhouse of the asylum ridiculed the idea of Liveringhouse being suspended.

The more the Hastings asylum scandal is stirred the more startling revelations are made. The board of public lands and buildings in possession of information which shows that Liveringhouse has not only presented duplicate vouchers, but has also been violating the statute which requires that no officer in any state institution shall be connected with any firm that is furnishing supplies to such an institution. Despite this statute Liveringhouse has been very nearly normal east of the Mississippi river.

Rainfall.—The rainfall during the week has been largely in excess in all districts, except on the immediate lower lakes coast, in the Ohio valley, the middle Atlantic states, except in a few localities in the interior of Georgia and South Carolina. The greatest excess has been in the west, where it has been 2.5 inches at Huron, S. D., and 2.9 inches at Concordia, Kan.

Temperature.—The temperature during the past week has been normal in the great part above the normal, east of the Mississippi and below to the westward. The mean daily temperature in Indiana and Ohio was 60 degrees in excess. Since January 1 the average temperature has been markedly above the normal in the extreme northwest, the lake region and in New England. It should be noted that this excess occurred before the growing season began.

General Remarks.—Arkansas: Weather favorable for all crops; corn never looked better; average yield of wheat and oats and cotton much better than last year. The entire crop is much needed. Iowa and Nebraska.—Too much rain during the past week for best results. The crops are all well, but the wheat is somewhat injured by hail in south-west Nebraska.

Michigan and Wisconsin.—Conditions favorable to all crops. The crops are all well, but the wheat is somewhat injured by hail in south-west Nebraska. Ohio and Indiana.—All crops doing well, though rainfall has been badly distributed. Corn, oats and meadows promising; fruits heavy.

Ohio and Indiana.—All crops doing well, though rainfall has been badly distributed. Corn, oats and meadows promising; fruits heavy. Kentucky and Tennessee.—Local showers beneficial to all crops except increasing weeds and cotton. The crops are all well, but the wheat is somewhat injured by hail in south-west Nebraska.

South Dakota and Minnesota.—Wheat and corn are all well. The crops are all well, but the wheat is somewhat injured by hail in south-west Nebraska. Louisiana and Mississippi.—Rainfall of the week has been in excess in all districts, except on the immediate lower lakes coast, in the Ohio valley, the middle Atlantic states, except in a few localities in the interior of Georgia and South Carolina.

Mississippi.—Rainfall of the week has been in excess in all districts, except on the immediate lower lakes coast, in the Ohio valley, the middle Atlantic states, except in a few localities in the interior of Georgia and South Carolina. Louisiana.—Rainfall of the week has been in excess in all districts, except on the immediate lower lakes coast, in the Ohio valley, the middle Atlantic states, except in a few localities in the interior of Georgia and South Carolina.

California.—Grass in north somewhat damaged by heavy rains. In the south all crops are doing well. Pennsylvania and New Jersey.—Recent rains have greatly improved crops. Though too late to help grass and early potatoes. Wheat harvest will be in Pennsylvania in the early part of July.

Illinois.—Harvest in northern Illinois and Missouri have damaged crops somewhat. Crop conditions generally favorable, except on the immediate lower lakes coast, in the Ohio valley, the middle Atlantic states, except in a few localities in the interior of Georgia and South Carolina.

Colorado and Kansas.—The last three days have been favorable for all crops, which are in the best condition, except corn, which has been injured by heavy rains. The crops are all well, but the wheat is somewhat injured by hail in south-west Nebraska.

Newspaper Reorganization. CINCINNATI, O., June 21.—There was a meeting of the directors of the Commercial Gazette at which there was a reorganization. Mr. Harry Morehead, having with his associates purchased all of James M. Glenn's interest in the paper, was elected president of the company, Mr. Glenn having retired. Marshall Halstead retains the vice presidency, representing his father's large block of stock. The paper will continue to be managed by Mr. Richard Smith who will continue to occupy an important position in the editorial department.

Run Them to Death. ASHLAND, Neb., June 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—An inhuman piece of work was culminated last evening. C. E. Stratton of Omaha had sold to his father, who lives in this city, a fine large team of gray horses and agreed to ride them over. He reached a poor choice of riders, for when they reached the Ashland depot both horses were nearly dead from being overheated. The evening train was just ready to leave for Omaha, and the man, whose name could not be learned, turned the animals over to a boy with instructions to take them up to the city barn, and jumped the train. One horse bled and the other is almost ruined.

Summer Law College. LINCOLN, Neb., June 20.—[Special to The Bee.]—Several young men of the State University, for a vacation, are meditating among the sages of the law by a summer course under the instruction of W. Henry Smith, dean of the Central Law.

They argue that this saves them about three months time and enables them to get credit for the last year of their law course. It is understood that the past graduate course will begin this fall covering insurance law, general jurisprudence, international and interstate law.

Nebraska Crop Bulletin. CHEYENNE, Neb., June 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—The weekly weather and crop bulletin for Nebraska, issued by the Boswell observatory, says the cold, wet weather has continued during the past week to the detriment of corn, which remains backward and weedy, while small grain still promises a large crop.

Temperature and sunshine have been everywhere below the normal. The rainfall has been above the normal in all sections of the state, excepting the south-

FOUND AN ASYLUM IN BRAZIL.

Belief That Fugitive Gideon Marsh is Safe in South America.

NO EXTRADITION WITH THAT COUNTRY.

Bounty for Sugar Producers—Superintendent Porter's Census Work About Completed—Rumors Concerning Mrs. Logan.

WASHINGTON BUREAU THE BEE, 515 FOURTEENTH STREET, WASHINGTON, D. C., June 21.

Gideon W. Marsh, the fugitive president of the Keystone National bank of Philadelphia, is believed to have arrived in Brazil, in the city of Rio de Janeiro, according to the fact that he has been reported to have an asylum in safety as long as he desires to stay there. While this country has a reciprocity treaty with Brazil which permits the interchange of goods, it has no extradition treaty which permits an exchange of criminals.

The same is true of most of the South American republics. The extradition treaty with Canada has been so enlarged of late that there is little refuge for criminals in Canada and now that they are closed out of their asylum northward, they can find one to the southward.

In view of this fact it is likely that negotiations will be open at any day for an amicable system of extradition between the United States and southern countries. Meanwhile President Marsh will have time to negotiate a complete immunity from prosecution.

BOUNTY FOR SUGAR PRODUCERS. Inquiries received by your correspondent from O'Neill and other sections of Nebraska indicate that the impression prevails, after reading in a Bee dispatch, concerning the defendant's wife and the Madden boys were the principal witnesses for the prosecution.

Their stories were similar, and yet contradictory in many particulars, and the needless cross-examination of C. B. Deane, attorney for the defense, they materially helped the cause of the defendant. Mrs. McDermott retired from the room in a hurry.

The dramatic incident of the trial was the testimony of the prisoner, which occurred in the evening in the presence of a vast assembly who listened with intense interest to the relation for the first time of his life during the three months of his incarceration in the Missouri state prison. The prisoner, who is a man of great intelligence, and without hesitation described vividly how he had grown to suspect McDermott as the author of the crime.

The day of the tragedy his suspicions became greatly increased through the visit of Thomas Madden, his partner in the beef business, who had been arrested and returned to his cabin-room, found his wife gone, and the baby and little Phil in his arms and started for Madden's ranch, unarmed. Outside the latter's cabin he was met by a man who told him to get into the house and stop, and that he was not to be allowed to leave. Peter searched him for weapons, found he had none and urged his brother to take advantage of the fact that the man was unarmed and shot him in the face and he lost consciousness.

There appears to have been but one assailant, and McDermott's attorney, who had the recital created a sensation. The court discharged the prisoner and he was allowed to go. In connection with this wholesome rounding up of criminals comes the intelligence, brought to the attention of the public, of an attempt to assassinate Thomas Madden, which occurred on last Tuesday evening at the residence of the latter, in the city of St. Louis. The assassin, who was a man of great intelligence, and without hesitation described vividly how he had grown to suspect McDermott as the author of the crime.

It is the question upon the tongues of the gossips here today. The inquiry is aroused by the departure of Captain George E. Lemmon, the well known claim agent and attorney. He follows close upon the footsteps of the late G. E. Lemmon, who was a man of great intelligence, and without hesitation described vividly how he had grown to suspect McDermott as the author of the crime.

IN THE CASE OF FREEMAN KELLY versus GEORGE W. IRVING for the preference of the right to make homestead entry on section 21, McCook, Neb., Assistant Secretary Chandler modified the land in favor of Kelly, and remanded the case for a rehearing upon the question whether the firm of Le Hew & O'Donnell was the firm of Kelly & O'Donnell, as alleged by Irving, who was a partner in the firm of Le Hew & O'Donnell, and if they were, preference of the right of entry of said section should be awarded to Kelly.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE Treasury Crouse has recommended the appointment of his son to be his private secretary. P. S. H.

PICKERS DROWNED.

Seven Colored People Lose Their Lives in a Boat Wreck. BALTIMORE, Md., June 21.—Colored people went to Curtis creek in great numbers today to view the spot where seven of their friends were drowned last night and to search for the bodies. Not one of the bodies was recovered up to late hour tonight.

Yesterday morning a party of colored pickers left the Curtis farm and came to Baltimore. They were returning at night when the boat was wrecked in the middle of the creek. Several of them jumped into a boat sent to their relief. The party who were saved were very drunk and were stepping on the side of the rowboat and threw the entire party into the water. A strong breeze was blowing at the time, and the boat was rapidly awash. Before it could be brought around the struggling men and women in the water were several hundred yards astern. The two Mohawks rescued, Richard Titus and Samuel Barnes. The others were drowned. The names of the drowned are: Georgiaa Titus, wife of the engineer, Lulu Mason, who was a colored woman, Walter Gaston, and a man whose name was not known.

Retained by a Modern Dogberry. PREMO, Colo., June 21.—The village of Eades, in Kiowa county, has a capable and enterprising constable. At that station last night the Missouri Pacific express was detained three hours by this modern Dogberry. A citizen of Eades garnished the salary of an employe of the road and got judgment for $17.50 and costs. The company neglected to settle and the matter was given to the constable. After a short stop at Eades last night the conductor signalled the engineer to pull out. The engineer, however, awed by the law's representative who had the requisite papers and had attached the engine, refused to do so. The constable, however, obtained finally instructions to pay the fourless constable who meantime occupied the train. A postal inspector was on duty, and it is said suit will be brought against the officer for intercepting United States mail.

Threw His Child Overboard. NEW YORK, June 21.—The steamer La Bretagne, which arrived here today from Havre, reports that Joseph Pegg, aged forty years, a stevedore passenger and native of Switzerland, while conversing with his family, consisting of a wife and five children, suddenly dragged his five-year-old son, Pierre, from his mother's arms and threw him into the sea. The child was lost and the officers of the ship and put in irons. He had threatened to throw all of his children overboard.

Stabbed by a Lunatic. RED CLIFF, Col., June 21.—Arthur Edwards, aged twenty, was fatally stabbed today at Bell's camp by a half-breed named Tom Baldwin. Edwards was leading two horses along the road when he met Baldwin. From some unknown cause the horses began plunging while Baldwin was in front of them. This enraged Baldwin, so he whipped out a knife and stabbed the boy in the abdomen. Edwards was carried by companions to a cabin near there, where he died. Baldwin followed, trying to get another chance at his victim, but was kept off at the point of a pistol and the door barricaded until help arrived.

Excursion Train Wrecked. Bad Accident on the Nickel Plate Road Near Dover, O. SEVEN CARS SMASHED TO PIECES. Party Composed of Street Railway Employes from Cleveland—One Man Killed and Many Received Serious Injuries.

CLEVELAND, O., June 21.—An excursion train of fifteen cars left this city this afternoon on the Nickel Plate railroad jumped the track near Dover, O., and seven cars were wrecked. The train was loaded with street railway employes and their families, who were going to Oak Point, a pleasure resort on the lake shore. One man was killed and more than thirty persons were injured. The list of the killed and wounded is as follows:

HENRY ROGERS, aged twenty-three years, crushed to death. BURT KEEFER, aged eighteen years, skull fractured and legs hurt; will probably die. PETER CHEDON, aged twenty-one, foot crushed and bad wound in jaw; not recovered. S. CLARK, aged twenty-six years, ribs broken. THOMAS GRANTLY, badly bruised and injured. The engineer and fireman escaped by jumping. Farmers living near the scene of the accident came to the rescue and the injured were taken care of until a corps of physicians from Cleveland arrived on the scene.

The most serious wounded were then brought to the city and taken to hospitals. The engine was running backward at the time of the smashup, although the accident was due to the spreading of the rails. The loss to the company will amount to several thousand dollars. The track will not be cleared before tomorrow.

THOMAS GRANTLY, aged twenty, ribs broken and internal injuries. EDWARD SHEPARD, aged twenty-three right leg crushed and hurt internally. WILLIAM STECKEMPER, aged thirty-four years, scap wound and legs crushed. LIZZIE RAY, aged twenty-six years, hip badly bruised. CHARLES QUARK, aged twenty-four years, foot badly bruised. GUY SCHUBERT, aged twenty-three years, bad scap wound. W. J. HENSTREITER, aged seventeen, right arm broken and leg crushed. A score or more of others were more or less injured, but were able to be removed to their homes and their names could not be ascertained.

Early in the afternoon the train was running about thirty miles an hour. The engine went down the bank on one side, the seven cars being thrown across the rails in both directions. One coach was split in two and the others were badly smashed. Rogers, the man killed, was caught in the wreck and had to be chopped out.

THOUGHT IT WAS MARSH. Philadelphia Detective Has a Very Exciting Story to Tell. SPRING LAKE, N. J., June 21.—Detective Max Freeman of Philadelphia had an exciting adventure Friday night and he is now in bed suffering severely from the effects of the injuries he received while endeavoring to capture a man said to be Gideon Marsh, president of the Keystone bank. Freeman was driving a scout car, with his dog and stopped at the Carleton house, where he had received intimations that Marsh had been seen in this vicinity and was in hiding at Como, a resort just north of this place, owned chiefly by his friend, Harry H. Yard. Freeman consulted with Constable Michael, and the pair, in company with Timothy Sexton, a detective from Spring Lake, who was believed the missing bank president was in hiding.

The cottage is situated in the midst of a dense woods, and was formerly owned by Yard. For some time past it has not been occupied. The trio made a careful survey of the surroundings after which the detective entered the house through a window and discovered that one room had been fitted up and had been occupied recently. He reconnoitered the place, and then returned to the Carleton and consulted Justice Hall as to whether he had authority to enter the house and make arrests. The justice gave them an affirmative answer, and the officers returned to the house in the woods. They tied their horses a short distance from the house and then surrounded the cottage. Sexton took a place on the side of the house nearest the road while his companions stealthily approached the main entrance.

EXCURSION TRAIN WRECKED.

Bad Accident on the Nickel Plate Road Near Dover, O.

SEVEN CARS SMASHED TO PIECES.

Party Composed of Street Railway Employes from Cleveland—One Man Killed and Many Received Serious Injuries.

CLEVELAND, O., June 21.—An excursion train of fifteen cars left this city this afternoon on the Nickel Plate railroad jumped the track near Dover, O., and seven cars were wrecked. The train was loaded with street railway employes and their families, who were going to Oak Point, a pleasure resort on the lake shore. One man was killed and more than thirty persons were injured. The list of the killed and wounded is as follows:

HENRY ROGERS, aged twenty-three years, crushed to death. BURT KEEFER, aged eighteen years, skull fractured and legs hurt; will probably die. PETER CHEDON, aged twenty-one, foot crushed and bad wound in jaw; not recovered. S. CLARK, aged twenty-six years, ribs broken. THOMAS GRANTLY, badly bruised and injured. The engineer and fireman escaped by jumping. Farmers living near the scene of the accident came to the rescue and the injured were taken care of until a corps of physicians from Cleveland arrived on the scene.

The most serious wounded were then brought to the city and taken to hospitals. The engine was running backward at the time of the smashup, although the accident was due to the spreading of the rails. The loss to the company will amount to several thousand dollars. The track will not be cleared before tomorrow.

THOMAS GRANTLY, aged twenty, ribs broken and internal injuries. EDWARD SHEPARD, aged twenty-three right leg crushed and hurt internally. WILLIAM STECKEMPER, aged thirty-four years, scap wound and legs crushed. LIZZIE RAY, aged twenty-six years, hip badly bruised. CHARLES QUARK, aged twenty-four years, foot badly bruised. GUY SCHUBERT, aged twenty-three years, bad scap wound. W. J. HENSTREITER, aged seventeen, right arm broken and leg crushed. A score or more of others were more or less injured, but were able to be removed to their homes and their names could not be ascertained.

Early in the afternoon the train was running about thirty miles an hour. The engine went down the bank on one side, the seven cars being thrown across the rails in both directions. One coach was split in two and the others were badly smashed. Rogers, the man killed, was caught in the wreck and had to be chopped out.

THOUGHT IT WAS MARSH. Philadelphia Detective Has a Very Exciting Story to Tell. SPRING LAKE, N. J., June 21.—Detective Max Freeman of Philadelphia had an exciting adventure Friday night and he is now in bed suffering severely from the effects of the injuries he received while endeavoring to capture a man said to be Gideon Marsh, president of the Keystone bank. Freeman was driving a scout car, with his dog and stopped at the Carleton house, where he had received intimations that Marsh had been seen in this vicinity and was in hiding at Como, a resort just north of this place, owned chiefly by his friend, Harry H. Yard. Freeman consulted with Constable Michael, and the pair, in company with Timothy Sexton, a detective from Spring Lake, who was believed the missing bank president was in hiding.

The cottage is situated in the midst of a dense woods, and was formerly owned by Yard. For some time past it has not been occupied. The trio made a careful survey of the surroundings after which the detective entered the house through a window and discovered that one room had been fitted up and had been occupied recently. He reconnoitered the place, and then returned to the Carleton and consulted Justice Hall as to whether he had authority to enter the house and make arrests. The justice gave them an affirmative answer, and the officers returned to the house in the woods. They tied their horses a short distance from the house and then surrounded the cottage. Sexton took a place on the side of the house nearest the road while his companions stealthily approached the main entrance.

Early in the afternoon the train was running about thirty miles an hour. The engine went down the bank on one side, the seven cars being thrown across the rails in both directions. One coach was split in two and the others were badly smashed. Rogers, the man killed, was caught in the wreck and had to be chopped out.

THOUGHT IT WAS MARSH. Philadelphia Detective Has a Very Exciting Story to Tell. SPRING LAKE, N. J., June 21.—Detective Max Freeman of Philadelphia had an exciting adventure Friday night and he is now in bed suffering severely from the effects of the injuries he received while endeavoring to capture a man said to be Gideon Marsh, president of the Keystone bank. Freeman was driving a scout car, with his dog and stopped at the Carleton house, where he had received intimations that Marsh had been seen in this vicinity and was in hiding at Como, a resort just north of this place, owned chiefly by his friend, Harry H. Yard. Freeman consulted with Constable Michael, and the pair, in company with Timothy Sexton, a detective from Spring Lake, who was believed the missing bank president was in hiding.

The cottage is situated in the midst of a dense woods, and was formerly owned by Yard. For some time past it has not been occupied. The trio made a careful survey of the surroundings after which the detective entered the house through a window and discovered that one room had been fitted up and had been occupied recently. He reconnoitered the place, and then returned to the Carleton and consulted Justice Hall as to whether he had authority to enter the house and make arrests. The justice gave them an affirmative answer, and the officers returned to the house in the woods. They tied their horses a short distance from the house and then surrounded the cottage. Sexton took a place on the side of the house nearest the road while his companions stealthily approached the main entrance.

Early in the afternoon the train was running about thirty miles an hour. The engine went down the bank on one side, the seven cars being thrown across the rails in both directions. One coach was split in two and the others were badly smashed. Rogers, the man killed, was caught in the wreck and had to be chopped out.

THOUGHT IT WAS MARSH. Philadelphia Detective Has a Very Exciting Story to Tell. SPRING LAKE, N. J., June 21.—Detective Max Freeman of Philadelphia had an exciting adventure Friday night and he is now in bed suffering severely from the effects of the injuries he received while endeavoring to capture a man said to be Gideon Marsh, president of the Keystone bank. Freeman was driving a scout car, with his dog and stopped at the Carleton house, where he had received intimations that Marsh had been seen in this vicinity and was in hiding at Como, a resort just north of this place, owned chiefly by his friend, Harry H. Yard. Freeman consulted with Constable Michael, and the pair, in company with Timothy Sexton, a detective from Spring Lake, who was believed the missing bank president was in hiding.

The cottage is situated in the midst of a dense woods, and was formerly owned by Yard. For some time past it has not been occupied. The trio made a careful survey of the surroundings after which the detective entered the house through a window and discovered that one room had been fitted up and had been occupied recently. He reconnoitered the place, and then returned to the Carleton and consulted Justice Hall as to whether he had authority to enter the house and make arrests. The justice gave them an affirmative answer, and the officers returned to the house in the woods. They tied their horses a short distance from the house and then surrounded the cottage. Sexton took a place on the side of the house nearest the road while his companions stealthily approached the main entrance.

Early in the afternoon the train was running about thirty miles an hour. The engine went down the bank on one side, the seven cars being thrown across the rails in both directions. One coach was split in two and the others were badly smashed. Rogers, the man killed, was caught in the wreck and had to be chopped out.

THOUGHT IT WAS MARSH. Philadelphia Detective Has a Very Exciting Story to Tell. SPRING LAKE, N. J., June 21.—Detective Max Freeman of Philadelphia had an exciting adventure Friday night and he is now in bed suffering severely from the effects of the injuries he received while endeavoring to capture a man said to be Gideon Marsh, president of the Keystone bank. Freeman was driving a scout car, with his dog and stopped at the Carleton house, where he had received intimations that Marsh had been seen in this vicinity and was in hiding at Como, a resort just north of this place, owned chiefly by his friend, Harry H. Yard. Freeman consulted with Constable Michael, and the pair, in company with Timothy Sexton, a detective from Spring Lake, who was believed the missing bank president was in hiding.

The cottage is situated in the midst of a dense woods, and was formerly owned by Yard. For some time past it has not been occupied. The trio made a careful survey of the surroundings after which the detective entered the house through a window and discovered that one room had been fitted up and had been occupied recently. He reconnoitered the place, and then returned to the Carleton and consulted Justice Hall as to whether he had authority to enter the house and make arrests. The justice gave them an affirmative answer, and the officers returned to the house in the woods. They tied their horses a short distance from the house and then surrounded the cottage. Sexton took a place on the side of the house nearest the road while his companions stealthily approached the main entrance.

Early in the afternoon the train was running about thirty miles an hour. The engine went down the bank on one side, the seven cars being thrown across the rails in both directions. One coach was split in two and the others were badly smashed. Rogers, the man killed, was caught in the wreck and had to be chopped out.

THOUGHT IT WAS MARSH. Philadelphia Detective Has a Very Exciting Story to Tell. SPRING LAKE, N. J., June 21.—Detective Max Freeman of Philadelphia had an exciting adventure Friday night and he is now in bed suffering severely from the effects of the injuries he received while endeavoring to capture a man said to be Gideon Marsh, president of the Keystone bank. Freeman was driving a scout car, with his dog and stopped at the Carleton house, where he had received intimations that Marsh had been seen in this vicinity and was in hiding at Como, a resort just north of this place, owned chiefly by his friend, Harry H. Yard. Freeman consulted with Constable Michael, and the pair, in company with Timothy Sexton, a detective from Spring Lake, who was believed the missing bank president was in hiding.

The cottage is situated in the midst of a dense woods, and was formerly owned by Yard. For some time past it has not been occupied. The trio made a careful survey of the surroundings after which the detective entered the house through a window and discovered that one room had been fitted up and had been occupied recently. He reconnoitered the place, and then returned to the Carleton and consulted Justice Hall as to whether he had authority to enter the house and make arrests. The justice gave them an affirmative answer, and the officers returned to the house in the woods. They tied their horses a short distance from the house and then surrounded the cottage. Sexton took a place on the side of the house nearest the road while his companions stealthily approached the main entrance.

Early in the afternoon the train was running about thirty miles an hour. The engine went down the bank on one side, the seven cars being thrown across the rails in both directions. One coach was split in two and the others were badly smashed. Rogers, the man killed, was caught in the wreck and had to be chopped out.

THOUGHT IT WAS MARSH. Philadelphia Detective Has a Very Exciting Story to Tell. SPRING LAKE, N. J., June 21.—Detective Max Freeman of Philadelphia had an exciting adventure Friday night and he is now in bed suffering severely from the effects of the injuries he received while endeavoring to capture a man said to be Gideon Marsh, president of the Keystone bank. Freeman was driving a scout car, with his dog and stopped at the Carleton house, where he had received intimations that Marsh had been seen in this vicinity and was in hiding at Como, a resort just north of this place, owned chiefly by his friend, Harry H. Yard. Freeman consulted with Constable Michael, and the pair, in company with Timothy Sexton, a detective from Spring Lake, who was believed the missing bank president was in hiding.

The cottage is situated in the midst of a dense woods, and was formerly owned by Yard. For some time past it has not been occupied. The trio made a careful survey of the surroundings after which the detective entered the house through a window and discovered that one room had been fitted up and had been occupied recently. He reconnoitered the place, and then returned to the Carleton and consulted Justice Hall as to whether he had authority to enter the house and make arrests. The justice gave them an affirmative answer, and the officers returned to the house in the woods. They tied their horses a short distance from the house and then surrounded the cottage. Sexton took a place on the side of the house nearest the road while his companions stealthily approached the main entrance.

Early in the afternoon the train was running about thirty miles an hour. The engine went down the bank on one side, the seven cars being thrown across the rails in both directions. One coach was split in two and the others were badly smashed. Rogers, the man killed, was caught in the wreck and had to be chopped out.

THOUGHT IT WAS MARSH. Philadelphia Detective Has a Very Exciting Story to Tell. SPRING LAKE, N. J., June 21.—Detective Max Freeman of Philadelphia had an exciting adventure Friday night and he is now in bed suffering severely from the effects of the injuries he received while endeavoring to capture a man said to be Gideon Marsh, president of the Keystone bank. Freeman was driving a scout car, with his dog and stopped at the Carleton house, where he had received intimations that Marsh had been seen in this vicinity and was in hiding at Como, a resort just north of this place, owned chiefly by his friend, Harry H. Yard. Freeman consulted with Constable Michael, and the pair, in company with Timothy Sexton, a detective from Spring Lake, who was believed the missing bank president was in hiding.

The cottage is situated in the midst of a dense woods, and was formerly owned by Yard. For some time past it has not been occupied. The trio made a careful survey of the surroundings after which the detective entered the house through a window and discovered that one room had been fitted up and had been occupied recently. He reconnoitered the place, and then returned to the Carleton and consulted Justice Hall as to whether he had authority to enter the house and make arrests. The justice gave them an affirmative answer, and the officers returned to the house in the woods. They tied their horses a short distance from the house and then surrounded the cottage. Sexton took a place on the side of the house nearest the road while his companions stealthily approached the main entrance.

EXCURSION TRAIN WRECKED.

Bad Accident on the Nickel Plate Road Near Dover, O.

SEVEN CARS SMASHED TO PIECES.

Party Composed of Street Railway Employes from Cleveland—One Man Killed and Many Received Serious Injuries.

CLEVELAND, O., June 21.—An excursion train of fifteen cars left this city this afternoon on the Nickel Plate railroad jumped the track near Dover, O., and seven cars were wrecked. The train was loaded with street railway employes and their families, who were going to Oak Point, a pleasure resort on the lake shore. One man was killed and more than thirty persons were injured. The list of the killed and wounded is as follows:

HENRY ROGERS, aged twenty-three years, crushed to death. BURT KEEFER, aged eighteen years, skull fractured and legs hurt; will probably die. PETER CHEDON, aged twenty-one, foot crushed and bad wound in jaw; not recovered. S. CLARK, aged twenty-six years, ribs broken. THOMAS GRANTLY, badly bruised and injured. The engineer and fireman escaped by jumping. Farmers living near the scene of the accident came to the rescue and the injured were taken care of until a corps of physicians from Cleveland arrived on the scene.

The most serious wounded were then brought to the city and taken to hospitals. The engine was running backward at the time of the smashup, although the accident was due to the spreading of the rails. The loss to the company will amount to several thousand dollars. The track will not be cleared before tomorrow.

THOMAS GRANTLY, aged twenty, ribs broken and internal injuries. EDWARD SHEPARD, aged twenty-three right leg crushed and hurt internally. WILLIAM STECKEMPER, aged thirty-four years, scap wound and legs crushed. LIZZIE RAY, aged twenty-six years, hip badly bruised. CHARLES QUARK, aged twenty-four years, foot badly bruised. GUY SCHUBERT, aged twenty-three years, bad scap wound. W. J. HENSTREITER, aged seventeen, right arm broken and leg crushed. A score or more of others were more or less injured, but were able to be removed to their homes and their names could not be ascertained.

Early in the afternoon the train was running about thirty miles an hour. The engine went down the bank on one side, the seven cars being thrown across the rails in both directions. One coach was split in two and the others were badly smashed. Rogers, the man killed, was caught in the wreck and had to be chopped out.

THOUGHT IT WAS MARSH. Philadelphia Detective Has a Very Exciting Story to Tell. SPRING LAKE, N. J., June 21.—Detective Max Freeman of Philadelphia had an exciting adventure Friday night and he is now in bed suffering severely from the effects of the injuries he received while endeavoring to capture a man said to be Gideon Marsh, president of the Keystone bank. Freeman was driving a scout car, with his dog and stopped at the Carleton house, where he had received intimations that Marsh had been seen in this vicinity and was in hiding at Como, a resort just north of this place, owned chiefly by his friend, Harry H. Yard. Freeman consulted with Constable Michael, and the pair, in company with Timothy Sexton, a detective from Spring Lake, who was believed the missing bank president was in hiding.

The cottage is situated in the midst of a dense woods, and was formerly owned by Yard. For some time past it has not been occupied. The trio made a careful survey of the surroundings after which the detective entered the house through a window and discovered that one room had been fitted up and had been occupied recently. He reconnoitered the place, and then returned to the Carleton and consulted Justice Hall as to whether he had authority to enter the house and make arrests. The justice gave them an affirmative answer, and the officers returned to the house in the woods. They tied their horses a short distance from the house and then surrounded the cottage. Sexton took a place on the side of the house nearest the road while his companions stealthily approached the main entrance.

Early in the afternoon the train was running about thirty miles an hour. The engine went down the bank on one side, the seven cars being thrown across the rails in both directions. One coach was split in two and the others were badly smashed. Rogers, the man killed, was caught in the wreck and had to be chopped out.

THOUGHT IT WAS MARSH. Philadelphia Detective Has a Very Exciting Story to Tell. SPRING LAKE, N. J., June 21.—Detective Max Freeman of Philadelphia had an exciting adventure Friday night and he is now in bed suffering severely from the effects of the injuries he received while endeavoring to capture a man said to be Gideon Marsh, president of the Keystone bank. Freeman was driving a scout car, with his dog and stopped at the Carleton house, where he had received intimations that Marsh had been seen in this vicinity and was in hiding at Como, a resort just north of this place, owned chiefly by his friend, Harry H. Yard. Freeman consulted with Constable Michael, and the pair, in company with Timothy Sexton, a detective from Spring Lake, who was believed the missing bank president was in hiding.

The cottage is situated in the midst of a dense woods, and was formerly owned by Yard. For some time past it has not been occupied. The trio made a careful survey of the surroundings after which the detective entered the house through a window and discovered that one room had been fitted up and had been occupied recently. He reconnoitered the place, and then returned to the Carleton and consulted Justice Hall as to whether he had authority to enter the house and make arrests. The justice gave them an affirmative answer, and the officers returned to the house in the woods. They tied their horses a short distance from the house and then surrounded the cottage. Sexton took a place on the side of the house nearest the road while his companions stealthily approached the main entrance.

Early in the afternoon the train was running about thirty miles an hour. The engine went down the bank on one side, the seven cars being thrown across the rails in both directions. One coach was split in two and the others were badly smashed. Rogers, the man killed, was caught in the wreck and had to be chopped out.

THOUGHT IT WAS MARSH. Philadelphia Detective Has a Very Exciting Story to Tell. SPRING LAKE, N. J., June 21.—Detective Max Freeman of Philadelphia had an exciting adventure Friday night and he is now in bed suffering severely from the effects of the injuries he received while endeavoring to capture a man said to be Gideon Marsh, president of the Keystone bank. Freeman was driving a scout car, with his dog and stopped at the Carleton house, where he had received intimations that Marsh had been seen in this vicinity and was in hiding at Como, a resort just north of this place, owned chiefly by his friend, Harry H. Yard. Freeman consulted with Constable Michael, and the pair, in company with Timothy Sexton, a detective from Spring Lake, who was believed the missing bank president was in hiding.

The cottage is situated in the midst of a dense woods, and was formerly owned by Yard. For some time past it has not been occupied. The trio made a careful survey of the surroundings after which the detective entered the house through a window and discovered that one room had been fitted up and had been occupied recently. He reconnoitered the place, and then returned to the Carleton and consulted Justice Hall as to whether he had authority to enter the house and make arrests. The justice gave them an affirmative answer, and the officers returned to the house in the woods. They tied their horses a short distance from the house and then surrounded the cottage. Sexton took a place on the side of the house nearest the road while his companions stealthily approached the main entrance.

Early in the afternoon the train was running about thirty miles an hour. The engine went down the bank on one side, the seven cars being thrown across the rails in both directions. One coach was split in two and the others were badly smashed. Rogers, the man killed, was caught in the wreck and had to be chopped out.